Evangelism

- As servant leaders, how are we approaching evangelism as we offer a wide variety of online services and Christian formation opportunities to our parish communities?
- Can we find ways to be radically invitational to children and young adults, to the unchurched, de-churched and those of other faith traditions who might find their encounter with the Grace of God within Episcopal liturgies and how do we engage the members of our parish in that invitational activity?

Stewardship

- As servant leaders, how are we embracing the financial aspects of stewardship and giving in this present crisis?
- What steps are we taking as both ordained and lay leaders to re-examine our approach to stewardship in the present and in the future as a true ministry and indeed, as a ministry that encompasses the stewardship of the entirety of our lives not only the financial support of our church's ministries?

Mission and the Future Church

- As servant leaders, how might we begin a visioning process of what our parish community might look like in the “new normal?” Many of us have started to offer a variety of daily services, including the beautiful rhythm of the Daily Office to our parish communities.
- Will we offer a blend of virtual and actual church gatherings in the future? Might small group/house church like worship be an important part of the organised church?
- How can we better serve the poor and needy in this time of crisis and in the “new normal” when we reach that point? How do we empower, enable and entrust our lay leadership in these processes?
